

GERMANY'S FAMOUS STEEL MASTER RISES FROM HUMBLE ORIGIN

(By Associated Press.)
HAMBURG-ON-THE-RHINE, Nov. 25.—One of the most important wheels in the German war machine is August Thyssen, in antebellum days coal and steel magnate of the first rank, but now, in view of the industrialization of war, general field marshal of the industrial army and collaborator and confidant of Hindenburg. He is small and frail, but powerful as an industrial leader. Notwithstanding the tremendous scope of his work, he clings stubbornly to old-fashioned methods where he himself is concerned.

He will not tolerate a stenographer for his personal use, but writes all his letters by hand. His correspondence is large, much larger than he can attend to, along with his other duties at his office. So he takes what is left over home with him to his only luxury, his castle home near Kettwig, and after dinner finishes it, if it takes until the wee small hours of the morning.

Despite his enormous wealth, he has never owned an automobile, nor will he ride in one to save his own time. He goes and comes from his home to his office on foot or in a street car. He wears a modest, dark colored business suit instead of the formal "morning suit" so generally affected in Germany, and looks less like a multi-millionaire than the average clerk.

From the very outset of his climb from comparative poverty to great riches, and above all to very great renown as an industrial leader, Herr Thyssen has steadfastly refused titles of all kinds.

In the late '60s he founded an iron establishment in Duisburg with his total capital of 8000 thalers (about $6000) and in 1871 moved his plant to Muelheim on the Ruhr, where there later came into existence the plant "Deutscher Kaiser," which today includes one-tenth of the coal lands of Westphalia and gigantic steel mills. Just before the war these were employed some 29,000 men and the coal fields contained some 370 millions of cubic meters of coal. He is now the principal owner of half a dozen huge industrial projects in the Rhineland.

FARMERS BLAME HIGH LIVING ON COST OF DISTRIBUTION

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—In defense of the farmer, the National Grange, in annual session here, has issued a statement analyzing the high cost of living and attributing the rising prices of farm products to poor crops and the increasing cost of what the farmer has to pay.

If any embargoes are to be placed to help the situation, the statement says, they should be on manufactured products, particularly munitions of war. Prohibition of gambling in foodstuffs and provision of more storage houses under control of the farmers themselves also are suggested.

The statement concludes as follows:

"We believe that in some instances production has been restricted by trusts and monopolies. This is particularly true of the meat situation, as many of the villages, towns and cities in many sections are not permitted to kill their own meats because of the unfair competition from the packing interests.

"We further believe that while the crops have been short, yet there is plenty for all in this country and some to sell. But at the same time economy should be practiced along all lines. The high prices of potatoes and vegetables this year does not mean the same price will prevail next year. By taking a ten year average the producer is not getting a living price and under present conditions we are only getting a fair price. At present prices of some articles, such as milk, atking into account its food value, is still cheap.

"Other causes might be enumerated thus: The alarming increase of insects and fungus pests.

"Gambling in food products, which should be prohibited.

"There should be more storage houses in the country and under the control of the farmers themselves.

"The duplication in delivery service in the village, town and city, also the lack of marketing facilities in some towns and cities.

"The American farmer is farming as well as he can afford. He will increase the yields, as he gets pay for increased production. Increased production means increased cost and unless prices warrant this increase, the farmer cannot go ahead."

80,000 SEATS SOLD FOR GAME BETWEEN YALE AND HARVARD

LEAD YALE

(By Associated Press.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 25.—The climax of the eastern football season will be reached here today with the meeting of the eleven of Harvard and Yale universities in the Yale Bowl, the largest football arena in the country.

This contest, the 37th since 1875, is no exception to the rule and the interest in the game is as great as at any time since the teams of the two institutions began the series forty-two years ago. Every seat of the 75,000 available in the huge bowl has been sold for several weeks and applications for more than 30,000 additional returned unfilled.

It is expected that close to 80,000 spectators will witness the contest, but the paid admissions will fall below these figures, giving gross gate receipts of over $150,000.

This intense interest in the game is striking, in view of the fact that the contest will not decide the eastern football championship as has been the case in some former years. Of the two eleven, Harvard has the better record in games won and also in consistent improvement, and is a logical favorite in the wagering. The famous fighting spirit of the Blue, however, prevents Crimson adherents from offering anything but short odds, notwithstanding the fact that in the last four games Harvard has won from Yale by scores of 20-0, 15-5, 36-0, and 41-0.

Regardless of the result of the game, Yale has a long lead in victories which Harvard must overcome before the Crimson can draw up on even terms with the Blue. Of the 36 contests since 1875 Yale has won on the point scoring system, piling up a total of 279 points to Harvard's 184.

Harvard continued to be a slight favorite this morning. A majority of the bets have been laid at 10 to 9, with the Crimson cohorts giving the extra point.

Despite the excellent drainage system, the field is water-soaked and heavy from the rain of yesterday. As a result it was decided to leave the

WILSON'S MESSAGE MARKED BY BREVITY

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—President Wilson's annual message to congress, now in the hands of the printer, contains about 2000 words and is among the shortest documents of its kind on record. It points out that the reports of the several government departments will be made before congress separately and that therefore their details are not discussed.

The president emphasized the uncompleted legislation on railroads suggested by him at the last session to meet the threatened railroad strike as the most pressing problems facing congress. He then goes on to a general discussion of other domestic problems.

MAJOR LEAGUE PLAYERS ARE WARNED NOT TO HELP
MINOR PLAYERS

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—"Should the major league players declare a sympathy strike because of the refusal of the national association to grant certain requests of the baseball players' fraternity, it will be a strike not against the national commission, but against the very game of baseball itself," said President John K. Tener of the National league in a statement issued here today.

"I cannot conceive that young men like our players can talk of attempting to tie up their business over such a trivial matter as is involved in the dispute between the players' fraternity and the minor leagues. A strike of this kind would simply mean that big league players would have to bear the entire brunt of it. The class AA and class A minor leagues could easily pick up 16 men for their teams, while the big leagues would be idle."

HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS

B. Shemanski, the old reliable dealer in jewelry, cut glass and similar wares, has just opened his holiday stock and his store is aglitter with beautiful articles, the cut glass making a particularly effective showing. He is making a specialty just now, on the eve of Thanksgiving, of carving sets, which he is offering at cost as a leader. His holiday stock is one of the largest and finest ever brought to southern Nevada and his purchases being in quantity and for cash, he is able to list the goods at remarkably low prices, considering their excellence.
